

Ben has developed a reputation as a first-call jazz, blues, and rock bassist in the Central and Northern Virginia areas. He has shared the stage with the great tenor saxophonist James Moody, Grammy Award-Winning alto saxophonist Eric Marienthal, John DeSalme (Army Blues), Duffy Jackson, and has opened for Jimmie's Chicken Shack and the Edwin McCain Band. Most recently, Ben has become a sought after clinician in the area for middle/high school jazz instruction and bass-specific workshops.

Renowned Saxophonist James Moody (L) with Ben Titus

Ben Titus

Ben holds a BM in Music Education (PreK-12 Instrumental) from Longwood University. He studied clarinet with Dr. Charles Kinzer and Richmond Symphony alum David Niethamer. By the end of his time at LU, Ben was the principal clarinetist with the Wind Symphony. He also remained an active bass player, studying jazz with Dr. Kinzer and winning the Outstanding Performer Award at the UNC-Wilmington Jazz Festival in 2006.

Ben Titus teaches Clarinet, Guitar and Bass at Roberson's Music